THE year 1875 has not been a prosperous one in a commercial sense. The trade of this Colony, which exhibited a decline in 1874, did not improve in the twelve months just concluded. The price of the dollar has fallen to a point few people would have bepresent moment it shows small signs of recovering. That the times are bad and business trenchment is the order of the day in almost be grown in India and it flourishes best on a every business establishment. The decline in trade is by no means confined to Hong. keng, however. It is spread over the whole of China and Japan. The great failures of London firms engaged in trade with the East have, of course, had a depressing effect upon trade both in India and China. The rash and reckless system of speculation indulged in formerly has also borne its fruit, which is now being resped, and is certainly Ho LAP AND HI TEAT V. THE EMIGRANTS CROSSING THE PLAINS. FROM THE "SHIP IN THE DESERT," BY TOAQUIN HILLER. What arenes they passed what camps at mora, -Want weary columns kept the road; What herds of troubled cattle low'd, And trampeted like lifted horn; And everywhere, or road or rest, All things were pointing to the west; A weary, long, and lonesome track,

And all led on, but one look'd back. They olimbed the rock-built breasts of carth, · The Titan fronted, blowy steeps That cradled Time ... Where Freedom keeps Her fing of white blown stars unforl'd, They turn'd about, they saw the birth Of sudlen dawn upon the world;

Again they gazed; they saw the face Of God, and named it boundless space, And they decended and did room Through levell'd distances set round By room. They saw the silences Nove by and becken; saw the forms, The very boards, of barly sterms, And heard them telk like counding sens. On unnamed beights bleak-blown and brown, And torn like buttlements of Mars, They saw the darknesses come down, Like curtains loosen'd from the dome

Of God's calbedral, built of starg. They pitch'd the tent, where rivers run ... As if to drown the falling sun. They now the enewy mountains roll'd, And heaved along the nameless lands Like mighty billows; saw the gold-Of awful sunsets; saw the blush Of sudden dawn, and felt the litteh Of heaven when the day sat down, And hid his face in dusky hands.

The long and lenesome nights | the tent That nestled soft in sweep of grass,
The bills against the firms ment Where scarce the moving recon could pass ; The cautious camp, the smother'd light, .The silent sentinel at night ! The wild beasts howling from the hill:

The troubled cattle bellowing; The savage prowling by the spring. Then sudden passing swift and still, And bended os a bow is bent The arrow sent! the arrow spent And baried in its bloody place, The dead man lying on his face !

The clouds of dust, their cloud by day; Their pillar of unfailing fire The far North star ..... And high, and higher ..... They climb'd so high it seem'd eftecon That they must face the falling moon, That like some flame lit ruin lay Thrown down before their weary way. They learn'd to read the sign of storms.

The moon's wide circles, unaset bars; And storm-provoking blood and flame And, like the Chaldean shepherds, came At night to name the moving stars. In henven's face they pictured forms Of beasis, of fishes of the sea. They mark'd the Great Bear wearily Rice up and drag his clinking chain Of store around the storry main.

What lines of yoked and patient steers! What weary thousands pushing west ! What restless pilgrims seeking rest, As if from out the edge of years!

What great yoked brutes with briskets low, With wrinkled necks like buffalo, With round, brown, liquid, pleading eyes, .. That shone like love's eyes soft with tears, That seemed to plead, and make replies ... The while they tow'd their necks and drew The creaking laid; and looked at you. .Their sable briskets swept the ground, Their cloven feet kept selemn sound.

Two sulica bullocks led the line, Their great eyes shining bright like wine; Two sullen captive kings were they, That had in time held herds at bay, And even now they crushed the sod With stolid sense of majesty. And statoly step'd and stately trod, As if 'twas something still to be Kings even in captivity, ....

Charles the Fifth and Henry the Fourth, to a hundred modern princes, you find them in Athenmus and in our old authors." Dionysius the Tyrant, we are told by Diogenes of Lacrte, treated his friends like vases full of goods liquors, which he broke which he had emptied them. This is precisely what Cardinal Reiz says of Madame do Chevreuse's treatment of her lovers. There is a story of Sully's meeting a young and Thomas, and Alexander P. That's all went on the Drury stage, but the two schools back stairs leading to Henry's apartment, not been told that his Majesty had a fever and could not receive that morning, "sire, but the fever is gone; I have just met it on the staircase, dressed in green.", This story is told of Demetrius and his father. The lesson of perseverance in adversity taught by the spider to Robert Bruce is said to have been taught by the same insect to Tamerlane. "When Columbus," says Voltaire, "promised a new hemisphere people maintained that it did not exist; and when he had Ringdove
